At the end of May, ENEX partners met for their annual Global Conference, organized by the Canadian partner Groom & Associates. Day 1 started with the official introduction of the new partner from India: HR Dimensions. A new Indian partner constitutes a major step forward in the ENEX network's global development. Furthermore, participants could take pleasure in listening to keynote speaker Dr. Steven Stein' exciting speech. He gave deeper insights into the EQ-I 2.0-questionnaire as well as into the subject of Emotional Intelligence for Recruitment and Leadership Programs.

On the second conference day, many further important topics were on the agenda: Global Communication and Marketing at ENEX, the Belgian partner Mentorprise's lecture on AI (artificial intelligence) and its impact on the HR world. The Brazilian partner Talenses Executive rounded off the day with an important international issue that companies (should) currently deal with: "Women and Business." Equal chances for women in business is a matter that ENEX puts great emphasis on and takes responsibility for.

Björn Knothe, CEO at division one and president of the ENEX group: "After two days, a labor-intensive and exciting, but also immensely successful international meeting has ended once again. I think because of interesting keynote speakers, best practice examples and the international exchange among each other, we were all able take a lot of input home with us. The ENEX group will keep growing and developing as a result of the newly defined goals and innovations. I am personally looking forward to the reunion with all partners during the next conference in 2020 in Tokyo!"

International cooperation and competence are essential for corporate success in today's globalized world. To be able to offer our customers first class industry and recruitment expertise on a national and international level, we have already been networking internationally for seven years. As a member of the ENEX group, division one has access to a first-class global network with 50 locations in more than 40 countries on all continents. ENEX may already look back on almost four decades of international experience.
